ILLINOIS MINERS RECALL FUND SENT TO KANSAS UNION

Ask Return of Money Contributed for Fight Against Industrial Court
DOES NOT MEAN WITHDRAWAL OF FINANCIAL AID SAYS OFFICER
Illinois Union Merely Wants Funds in Its Own Hands

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Further financial support from Illinois for Alexander Howat and his followers, will be forthcoming if it is needed, Secretary-Treasurer Walter Nesbit of the Illinois Miners' union, said Thursday afternoon.

PITTSBURGH, Kan.—Returns to the treasury of the Illinois miners of the balance of the $100,000 fund sent to the Kansas miners to fight the industrial court law, has been asked by Walter Nesbit, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois district.

In a letter to Thomas Harvey, provisional secretary-treasurer of the Kansas district, Nesbit asked that the $43,000 remaining should be returned for deposit in the treasury of district No. 12.

Charges were made in the recent international convention at Indianapolis that Howat had misused the Illinois funds. It was asserted that Howat had refused to allow his lawyers to enter into a friendly suit to test the Kansas law and expedite it through the courts.

Van A. Rinker, representing John A. Lewis, international president, announced this morning that the money would be returned to the Illinois miners immediately.

Will Not Withdraw Aid
SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—"Absolutely false," says the words with which Walter Nesbit, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois United Mine Workers, greeted the advice from Kansas that financial support had been withdrawn from the fight against the Kansas industrial court law.

"Support has not been withdrawn from the Kansas miners," Mr. Nesbit said. "The only thing we have done is to transfer the physical cash from the state of Kansas to Illinois. The money is in our hands but our support is still with Kansas."

Asked the reason for the transfer, Mr. Nesbit said it was because Thomas Harvey, provisional secretary-treasurer of the Kansas district, is opposed to Howat and his fight against Governor Allen.

"We didn't want our money in the hands of another camp. We prefer to have charge of it ourselves," he said.

BOMB THAT WRECKED HERRICK HOME IN PARIS BELIEVED TO BE OF BRITISH MANUFACTURE

PARIS.—Police authorities investigating the explosion of an internal machine in the residence of Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France, Wednesday, report that apparently a British bomb, widely used during the war, was concealed in the package sent to the ambassador. It will be recalled that Mr. Herrick's sister recognized the sound given out by the package when it was opened as being that of a bomb and that he was formerly a soldier in the British forces in France. No clue as to those who plotted to assassinate Mr. Herrick has been found and fragments of the wrapper of the deadly package are being examined in the hope that it may be possible to trace its origin. It was badly shattered by the explosion, however, and there would appear to be little hope of detecting the criminal.

Paris newspapers voiced horror at the outrage and printed long accounts and photographs showing the wrecked room in the Herrick residence.

L'Humanite declared that the police might use the incident in their campaign against communists.

French experts examining several hundred letters sent recently to the American ambassador, discovered one which they believed may furnish a strong clue in tracing the maker of the bomb.

The letter was addressed to the ambassador personally and is said to have contained a threat to kill him by "scientific means."

These experts Thursday believed they saw a striking similarity between the handwriting of the letter and that of the address on the box which contained the bomb.

The letter was written in French, and in small, uneven letters indicating that the author was an uneducated Frenchman. At the top of the sheet were the words "Sageo and Vanzetti" written in large letters. These names evidently referred to Nicola Sageo and Bartholomae Vanzetti, two Italians who were convicted of first degree murder by a Massachusetts court last summer.

KONOP ANNOUNCES RESIGNATION FROM INDUSTRIAL BOARD
Second Appointment Will Give Administration Control of Important Commission

MADISON, Wis.—Thomas Konop, for four years a member of the state industrial commission, tendered his resignation to Governor Blaine Thursday morning to take effect November 1. He will enter the practice of law in Milwaukee.

Mr. Konop says that there is no politics involved in his resignation, that he had an opportunity to enter private life again and had decided to accept. This will be the second appointment to the important industrial commission that Governor Blaine will have made since taking office.

Governor Philip named Mr. Konop, then of Green Bay, a member of the commission in 1917. He has served during the four years that have followed.

R. G. Knutson of La Crosse was appointed by Governor Blaine last June as the member to succeed George L. Hambrecht. Appointment of a successor to Konop will give the administration control of the commission.

MINISTER ON STAND DESCRIBES KILLING OF CATHOLIC PRIEST

Shot Man Who Officiated at Marriage of His Daughter Against His Wishes

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS MARK SESSIONS OF TRIAL
Husband of Girl Called to Stand But Does Not Testify

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Taking of testimony was expected to be completed Thursday in the trial of the Rev. Edwin R. Stephenson, who is charged with second degree murder in connection with the shooting of Father James E. Coyne, Catholic priest, August 11.

The fourth day of the trial found another great crowd present. Wednesday's session marked by many tense situations, brought to a dramatic close by the appearance before the jury of Father Stephenson, who as a communicant of Father Coyne's church, was married to Stephenson's daughter by the priest.

After Stephenson had concluded his narrative of events which led up to the shooting and had described the manner in which he slew the priest, counsel for the defense called Gussman. He was paraded before the jury for their close scrutiny. No word was spoken by the witness and he was then excused. Gussman was well-dressed, a man of small stature, about 40 years of age. Mrs. Gussman testified at the preliminary trial that he was a native of Porto Rico.

The minister, proceeding, said he went to the rectory in search of his daughter, not knowing that she had been married. In conversation with the priest he learned that his daughter had been married by Father Coyne to Gussman and he then told the priest "you have treated me as dirty as a dog in murdering my daughter to a negro."

The priest told him not to repeat the statement. He repeated it, whereupon, he said, the priest grabbed the minister's belt, struck and kicked him and reached for his hip pocket.

"I shot him then," said the minister, his voice breaking and tears coming in his eyes.

CITY SUES "O" FOR FIRE AMONG TREES IN HIXON FOREST
Asks $1,000 Damages to Trees in Nursery; Engine Sparks Start Blaze in Dry Grass

The city of La Crosse, in a suit just filed in circuit court, seeks to recover $1,000 from the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad for damages alleged to have been done to trees in a nursery owned by the city along the Burlington road near the Country club.

The nursery is in Hixon forest. The complaint charges that sparks from an engine fired dry grass and other combustible material left on the Burlington right of way through negligence of the road's employees and the flames spread to Hixon forest, destroying 407 growing trees in the nursery there. The fire occurred on April 25, 1920.

Salim Joz and Gust Lebrake, Mill street, were brought into police court Thursday morning when they failed to appear Wednesday afternoon as scheduled. They were brought to court for failing to comply with the health department regulations in making proper sewer connections.

Their cases were adjourned until Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 26 at 2 o'clock.

The health department has experienced difficulty in obtaining compliance with the law in this respect with numerous residents of the city this fall, between thirty and forty having been arraigned and asked to explain reasons for non-compliance with the law after receiving notices.

URGE NO-PROFIT MONTH ON BUILDING MATERIAL
CHICAGO, Ill.—A "no-profit" month, during which all dealers in building materials and real estate to be used for homes, offer their goods at least to stimulate building, was suggested to the National Retail Lumbermen's association Wednesday by L. E. Hiett, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

CUTS OFF SISTERS AND GIVES MONEY TO FOUND CATS' HOME

NEW YORK.—Cats all over the world will benefit from the $800,000 obtained by the sale of the Evenhousen estate.

Miss Caroline Evenhousen, who occupied the property for years with her two sisters, had a passion for caring for cats. It was her dream that every cat should have plenty of catnip, milk and a comfortable backyard fence to play on during every one of its nine lives. She devoted her life to establishing catnip farms and relief organizations for stray cats. She cut off her two sisters in her will because they were not sufficiently enthusiastic about cats.

The money for rescuing the world's cat population became available when her nephew recently settled his contest of her will out of court.

GOVERNOR BLAINE RENEWS ATTACK ON ESCH-CUMMINS ACT

Normal Conditions Will Not be Reached Till Law is Repealed He Declares

WISCONSIN GOVERNOR SPEAKS AT CONFERENCE OF EXECUTIVES

Blames War-time Extravagance for Present Depression

DES MOINES, Ia.—Governor John J. Blaine of Wisconsin, in speaking to middle west governors and state officials in conference here Wednesday, declared there can be no return to normal conditions until the Esch-Cummings law is repealed.

After a lengthy talk on the freight rate problem, the unemployment situation and conditions generally, the Wisconsin governor presented a resolution calling for repeal of the Esch-Cummings law. Action was deferred.

He referred to war times and blamed the extravagance of that period in all lines of business for the depression now existing and expressed his opinion that it would be some time before peace and harmony can prevail through the nation.

"The Esch-Cummings law discourages efficient and responsible management for it guarantees the carriers a fixed return. Railroad stocks are greatly inflated and the fixed guarantee is upon the inflated value, commonly known as 'watered stock.'"

"A guarantee to a private enterprise is dangerous and vicious, yet there is no more justification for guaranteeing a return on railroad investments than guaranteeing the farmer, merchant, banker, manufacturer, professional man or woman a return," he declared.

"Under the Esch-Cummings law the transportation companies have found an excuse for organizing 'subsidiary' companies with over-capitalized assets in connection with transportation which results in further increasing the burdens of rates," Governor Blaine said.

He added that this law had taken away from the states all power to regulate state rates. In relating Wisconsin's road building program, Governor Blaine said it cost from $22,000 to $30,000 a mile for paving, of which he charged from $4,000 to $5,000 of the cost per mile was consumed in freight rates alone.

Unemployment, he said, was not so serious in Wisconsin as in Iowa, due to the diversified industries. The real situation in Wisconsin is acute, he said, and asked the conference to discuss the situation. He termed the Pittsburgh plan, which fixes basic prices on steel, another curse.

D. A. Garber of New York, president of the Northwestern Construction company, who is in the city with several construction men making a tour of the middle west states, appeared before the conference.

He met opposition when he told the state executives that now was the right time to build and speed up construction after saying that labor and materials were reasonably cheap. After a brief outline of the needs for construction to remedy the unemployment situation he added that in nearly all cases prices on materials and construction prices were right. He said there was now an asking price and a selling price for materials, and the time was right to build if you had the money and could make the material men forget the "asking" price.

MRS. BAYER HEADS WOMEN TO WELCOME FORD DAY VISITORS

Representatives to Meet Guests at Y. W. C. A. and Other Central Points

LOOK OUT FOR MYSTERIOUS MAN AND WOMAN—FOR PRIZE

Learn the Formula by Heart in Order to Win

EVERYTHING is in readiness for Ford day. The last nail has been driven in the stage on which is to be held tomorrow that greatest combination fun and shopping day ever held in the city of La Crosse. The eyes of the entire country will be focussed on La Crosse tomorrow, for while there have been Ford days held in many places, the interest has been centered in the selling of the popular automobile from which the day takes its name. In La Crosse, the event has for its object the broadening and strengthening of relations between La Crosse and her rural neighbors, and a creation of more intimate relations made possible by indulging in hearty fun together.

A special ladies' committee, of which Mrs. John A. Bayer is the chairman, will have as its duties the care of lady visitors. The committee will have representatives at the Y. W. C. A., the Chamber of Commerce, the Ford Garage, and other places where their services may be required. The committee will wear prominent badges, and they are ready to answer any questions and be of any possible assistance.

Badge-Bearers Can Tell
All business men have been pressed into service as a general reception and information committee. They will be in evidence everywhere and will be easily recognized by their badges. Visitors can obtain any information they desire from these men.

The "slow race" for Fords will take place at 1:15 p. m. sharp. The course is Main street from Fourth to Fifth streets. All contestants are requested to be on Main street west of Third street as early as possible before 1:15 for instructions. Contestants must be registered at the Ford Garage and bear the "I Have Registered" card before they can be considered eligible. Judges of this event are Walter S. Meiklejohn and Dr. T. H. McGovern.

A special committee on prizes has been appointed, consisting of John Snyder, chairman, Robert Fritz, L. B. Raymond and E. H. Derr.

An additional prize of a Ford tire has been given to the committee, and as the prize list was already published, could not be included. It is announced that this tire will be given to the oldest Ford in the city of La Crosse.

Parade Site Changed
Owing to the fact that the city began street work on King street on Thursday, closing off the thoroughfare at Fifth street, it was found necessary to shift the location of the parade formation to Cass street. Just one block south. Parade Chief H. O. Williams on Thursday morning said that the parade will form on Cass street, facing west, the head of the column at the intersection of Fifth and Cass streets.

The route of the parade has also been slightly changed by the necessary shift. It will be as follows: North on Fifth to King, west to Fourth, north to Pearl, west to Front, north to Main, east on Main to Sixth and south to the Ford Garage.

Merchants have already begun to decorate and many have started their intention to decorate with flags and bunting in honor of the Ford day visitors. The committee urgently requests everyone to decorate their stores and offices for this highly important occasion.

Watch For Strangers
The "mysterious man" and "mysterious woman" will be in evidence all day. The "mysterious man" is a rather short person, but he is of a stocky athletic build. He is a blonde and has a pleasant smile and a most engaging manner. He will (Continued on page six)

LABOR BOARD MEETING WITH BIG 5 CHIEFS

Conference on at Chicago Today to Discuss Means of Averting Threatened Walk-out

STANDARD UNIONS AWAITING OUTCOME OF THE CONFERENCE

Rail Executives Laying Plans to Operate Trains if Strike Comes

CHICAGO, Ill.—The prospective railroad strike cannot be postponed but it can be settled. This was the opinion of the Big Four brotherhood officers and the president of the switchmen's union after a conference on Thursday morning, at which they had considered all possible phases of the situation as they may be presented at the meeting in the afternoon with U. S. labor board.

Following the morning conference on which the executives refused to comment officially, it was unofficially learned that the unions were in a receptive frame of mind and hopeful of some development favorable to them from the railroad labor board meeting that would avert the strike.

CHICAGO, Ill.—Chiefs of the big four brotherhoods and the switchmen's union arrived Thursday morning and went into conference preparatory to their meeting this afternoon with the United States railroad labor board.

Union headquarters was optimistic and there was a strong feeling that there would be no strike unless something unexpected occurs to disrupt the conference.

Labor board members were optimistic over the prospects of an adjustment of the brotherhood members' complaints, but no plans had been announced for discussing with railroad executives the board's program of averting the strike by temporarily maintaining the present wage level and reducing freight rates.

Present at the union conference were: W. S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; L. E. Sheppard, president of the Order of Railway Conductors; W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; W. M. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and T. C. Cashen, president of the Switchmen's union of North America.

Other Unions Mark Time
The eleven so-called "standard unions," marked time awaiting the outcome of the labor board meeting. While a few of their general chairmen met to discuss strike plans, the majority crowded the hearing rooms of the labor board to see the Pennsylvania railroad cited for failure to obey the board's orders.

Despite the optimism in brotherhood circles, J. M. McGrath, vice-president of the Railway employees department, A. F. of L., (the six federated shop crafts) declared before the labor board hearing in the Pennsylvania case began that a strike seemed to him to be certain. The shop crafts have voted to strike but have not yet issued the strike orders.

Twenty-two railroads have violated labor board decisions, McGrath said, and the men are insistent on walking out.

Order New Strike Vote
N. T. Good, chairman of system federation No. 90, the shop crafts local on the Pennsylvania lines, announced that he had ordered a new strike vote taken among all shop employees on the Pennsylvania lines both union and non-union, and that the shopmen would not strike until the result of this ballot is known.

Prior to the conference with the brotherhoods the board had a scheduled hearing with Pennsylvania railroad representatives on charges of violation of a board decision requiring a new election of shop crafts representatives. This case is the first of its kind to come before the board and is expected to establish the extent of the board's power in enforcing its decisions under the transportation act.

Roads Advertise For Men
Plans to operate passenger, mail and milk trains are being pushed by railroad executives in event the strike takes place, with resumption of freight traffic as soon as men can be secured. From the ranks of men recently laid off, pensioners, local veterans and others with railroad experience, officials here declared they (Continued on page six)

GOVERNORS TO MEET AT CHARLESTON FOR ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Unemployment to be One of Principal Subjects for Discussion

MADISON, Wis.—State governors of the United States will meet at Charleston, S. C., on December 3 for their annual conference to consider problems now confronting the country. Miles C. Riley, secretary of the conference, announced here Thursday. Unemployment will be one of the principal subjects before the gathering, Mr. Riley says.

While no definite business program has been determined as yet, the secretary declares that the governors generally agree that Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, and James J. Davis, secretary of labor, should attend the meeting as representatives of President Harding and the conference on unemployment.

Among other subjects that unemployment to be discussed are agricultural credit, taxation, freight rates, governmental decentralization, centralization of purchases of state requirements, extradition, workmen's compensation, the short ballot and uniform state laws for co-operative associations.

Governor Cooper of South Carolina will entertain the visiting governors who are expected to be in attendance from all but seven states.

TRUCKS OPERATING WHOLLY IN CITIES PAY $10 LICENSES

MADISON, Wis.—Trucks that operate at all times entirely within the corporate limits of villages and cities, in which they are owned will only have to pay a $10 license fee next year, according to Elmer S. Hall, secretary of state.

Requests for 1922 licenses will be received any time after December 1st. The office is always deluged with these early requests which are generally for some favorite number that has been in the "family" for years. These requests are granted as far as possible. The license fee for next year will be $10 for all automobiles and for such truck owners who will send a sworn statement that they never operate the truck outside of the corporate limits of the resident village or city.

Truck licenses for trucks weighing up to 2,100 pounds will cost $15; for those up to 5,100 it will be $20; and $25 for all over this weight. Dealers' licenses will be $25 with two sets of plates. Additional plates will cost $5 per pair. A charge of 75 cents will be made for replacing lost plates.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN BRITAIN WORST IN YEARS SAYS PREMIER

LONDON.—By The Associated Press.—The situation in England as regards trade and unemployment is worse than at any time since the end of the time of the Napoleonic wars, declared Premier Lloyd George in the house of commons in outlining the government's policy on these two subjects.

At present he said, there are 1,750,000 persons unemployed, and added that the greatest unemployment, to the extent of 17 per cent, was in the metal trades.

He declared that the causes for this situation could all be summed up in one word—war.

As a part of the government's plan of alleviation, he said the government proposed to ask parliament for an appropriation of another 200,000 pounds to enable ex-service men to emigrate to dominions, whither he said 60,000 already had settled with government assistance.

CONSUMPTION OF GASOLINE AT HIGH MARK IN AUGUST

WASHINGTON.—A new high record in gasoline consumption was established in August, when 503,000,000 gallons were used, according to an announcement Wednesday by the Bureau of Mines. Although the average daily production in August of 13,921,000 gallons was $25,000 gallons more than in July, total stocks of gasoline on August 31, amounting to 567,613,000 gallons, showed a decrease of 116,000,000 gallons during the month, according to the figures. Exports of gasoline in August totaled 47,802,000 gallons or 75 per cent more than in July. Total production for the month was given as 411,777,000 gallons.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing soothes fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is as precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

THREE BADGERS TO ATTEND BURIAL OF UNKNOWN SOLDIER

MADISON, Wis.—Three Wisconsin ex-service men will represent the state at the burial of the unknown soldier at Arlington cemetery, Washington, on November 11th. Those appointed by Governor Blaine Thursday are Lawrence J. Brady, executive clerk, Madison; Captain Nicholas Schmitz, Wisconsin National Guard member of the 32nd division, Hartford; and Paul Gaston of Rhinelander.

These men will attend the ceremony at federal expense taking part in the procession from the nation's capital to the national cemetery on Arlington Heights. They will arrive in Washington on the evening of the 10th and return following the Armistice Day exercises.

MORE FUNDS NEEDED TO OPERATE PENSION SYSTEM SAYS BOARD

Administrators of Teachers' Fund Asks Emergency Ap- propriation of $28,000

MADISON, Wis.—The new $1,000,000 teachers' retirement fund law will require $28,000 more for administration than provided in the $22,000 appropriation authorized by the last legislature, the annuity board has decided after a study of operation of the new pension system.

Request is being made to the emergency board for the needed $28,000. The board has not yet decided whether it will approve the sum and has asked Henry Johnson, state treasurer, to investigate with a view to determining what the exact needs are.

It has been found that $12,000 is totally inadequate to provide for administration of the law during the first year, according to determination of the directing annuity board. Unless additional funds are authorized, a proper organization for setting the system at work will be impossible, the board says.

School district officers have been advised not to send further funds from teachers' salaries to the state treasury until specially prepared blanks are received, on which they can make their reports. The board wishes to have its organization in shape to expedite all matters pertaining to the new insurance.

SIX CHICAGO NURSES ILL FROM EFFECTS OF POISONED CANDY

Postoffice Inspectors Seeking Source of Box of Home- made Fudge

CHICAGO, Ill.—An exhaustive search for the sender of a box of poisoned candy, responsible for the serious illness of six nurses at the West End hospital, was being conducted Wednesday by postoffice inspectors.

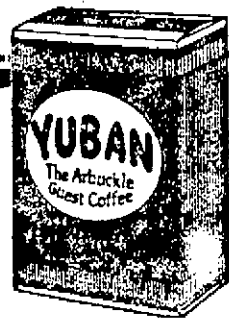

The box came through the mail and was addressed to Miss Helen Rosenfeld, a 17-year-old student nurse. It contained home-made "fudge," analysis of which by the laboratory report of the institution, was said to show that the supposedly deadly poison permeated all of the candy.

Miss Rosenfeld came to America nine months ago from Austria and has been a student nurse in the hospital since that time. In the candy box was a typewritten note, bearing the following inscription:

"From a patient who was an ardent admirer. This candy was faithfully made."

The girl invited six other nurses to share the candy with her and within a few minutes all of them became ill. One of the theories advanced by the postal authorities is that some jealous suitor sent the box to Miss Rosenfeld.

CHARITY GREATEST

Let La Crosse Speak

AS the disarmament conference draws near, signs that it may not find within itself inspiration for the great task which nominally it has set out to perform are paralleled by indications that throughout the United States public sentiment is mobilizing for the contest of progress against the fixed order. It is wisely felt that the conference can get its essential inspiration as an infusion from the public, and to that end there is widespread preparation to make public sentiment felt within the council of the nations.

In La Crosse there appears to be a very general feeling for disarmament having a substantial beginning and a progressive program of effectuation. Unless this feeling shall become articulate, its existence will do little good. Our government is a political institution. It is sensitive to general movements of public opinion, but it has no sixth sense of divination to tell it what is in the minds of the people. If all the hope and determination which this country has for disarmament can be brought to the consciousness of government officials and conference members they will not remain unimpressed. If it shall come to their ears that the nation is alert for sham, and will detect makeshifts and subterfuges, they will consider seriously the value of candor. Indeed, it is probable that at this very moment the fate of disarmament, which may be the fate of civilization, is in the hands of the people. It remains for them to deliver their message with such force and authority that statesmen will understand that they must deliver the goods or be cast into outer darkness.

La Crosse has exchanged views, citizen with citizen, group with group. Remains the task of making its influence felt in Washington. The line is short. Policies are being fixed. Trading stock for small favors is being jingled. Soon the swapping of the diplomats will begin. They must be struck, staggered, by a wave of popular opinion before or soon after November 11. Can not La Crosse organizations of all kinds take time to express each its consensus of opinion? Resolutions by the separate churches, resolutions by ministerial associations, resolutions by civic and fraternal orders, clubs, classes and political groups, resolutions by unions, federations and board, will do the work. Enough could be adopted to aggregate an almost unanimous expression of opinion by the people of La Crosse upon the most momentous question of the century.

We complain much of government. Frequently it is faulty. Where it errs, in most cases, its failure is due to the fact that it has not sensed the will of the people. This, in turn, is due to the people's failure to make its voice heard distinctly, and emphatically enough to have become a popular mandate at the seat of government.

Take this great problem up in your church, your school, your lodge—in whatever group you have selected as the mouthpiece of your political and social aspirations. Send La Crosse's word to Washington. Let it be an ultimatum.

A Grave Moment

THE country seems to stand upon the brink of a great disaster. A general railroad strike would be nothing less. If it comes the impact of the blow may come home to La Crosse very shortly, for this city may be hit by a strike on its three main railroads. If the strike gives us this three-fold wallop, we will experience as a community how far the consequences of a basic strike affect society outside of the limited realm of strikers and employers.

Everybody in Washington is conferring. The postmaster general is getting ready to run mail trains by force. It is said at the White House that all roads will be kept running. Two million railroad workers say they shall not run. A settlement failing, we may soon see the military power of the United States taking a hand. Opposed to them will be an army of toilers more than half as big as the army we raised for the world war.

There are government officials who take the position that the reduction of wages July 1 must be followed by reduced rates before further reduction of wages can be considered. They say wages are based on the cost of living, and that rail rates make up part of the cost of living. Hence, they argue, rates must be reduced to bring down the cost of living before wages can be reduced to meet lower living cost.

It sounds logical, but one should not take too much stock in it. It is improbable that freight rates will be reduced enough to substantially bring down the cost of living. It is a good talking point upon which to frame a compromise, but per se it does not settle anything.

The one hope of peace lies in the danger of a strike. It will endanger stages of the multitude. It will endanger business. It will endanger private ownership of transportation. It will endanger the railroad unions, and through them other unions. It may even endanger the government itself. With a danger so great, so vital to so many different interests, it stands to reason that all concerned have much at stake in avoiding a general railroad strike. While "standing pat," perhaps for certain effects, brotherhood officials have shown their appreciation of the danger. They have declared they will be glad to meet President Harding in conference. They have said they will man enough trains to carry the country's food supply.

It isn't for one or another of us to say what constitutes fair wages for railroad workers. We can not, as individuals, know just how much poor railroad management and waste are adding to the burden of transportation. But probably most of us will agree that railroaders should have fair wages and railroad waste should be eliminated. A settlement effectuating these two things would probably be satisfactory to the public. But, if they strike, railroad workers are likely to find a nation in bad humor with participants in a wage quarrel whose dispute hails the wavering business resumption and adds to the hardships of a people already staggering under the load of war costs and unemployment.

We may as well face the music. If a general railroad strike takes place the fact will exceed in significance any other event since the United States declared war on Germany.

In Ye Olden Times

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

Eddie Konetchy is home again. Not only that, but six other members of the Rzesahan clan have arrived and will demonstrate the big league methods of swinging the bat in the Sunday mix-up with a team of semi-pros. Friends of the Cardinal first sacker treated him and his party to a unique banquet at Gund's brewery last evening. This afternoon they all left for Ponderosa cottage in John Solter's launch to spend the day.

At a common council meeting last night City Attorney A. J. Schaubert stated to the liquor license committee that the resolution to raise the saloon license from $200 to $500 is illegal. As a result it was decided to report to those favoring the raise that the council cannot act in the matter.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The city is having brick walks laid on the approaches to the Rose street viaduct. Morton and Allen have the contract.

Julio Fries and Ed Miller have returned from Lexington, Kentucky, where they witnessed the horse races.

A Dikeman has removed his bicycle and repair shop from Caladonia street to 513 Mill.

Another wing dam is being built out into the Mississippi from the east shore of Perithone park to throw the current further toward the middle of the river.

An orchestra has been organized in Onalaska with the following officers: President, Ella Taylor; secretary, Ollie Hanson; treasurer, Earl Warnes.

The liverymen and funeral outfitters of the city, who, because of disagreements among themselves, have been doing the funeral business at what is considered low rate, have decided upon a new and uniform arrangement of prices to settle the difficulty.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The new school building in the Ninth ward in North La Crosse is assuming majestic proportions. The roof is being put on the cupola and soon North La Crosse will have a school building with which there will be none more complete in its appointments. Residents of the ward are justly proud of it.

The Fairest Wind

BY KATE EDWARDS

"Do they really forbid our marriage?" demanded Ronald, swelling his broad chest indignantly. "Positively," and Eva's charming face was so full of love and sympathy that he could do more than spend the money he had inherited from a rich father. He was studying law, and then his hobby for flying machines had completed his education. Even now his newest little biplane was resting on the green meadows of the Gray estate.

"What did the judge say?" asked Ronald, as he glanced aggressively toward the big house half hidden among the tall maples.

"He said," said Eva very deliberately, "that when you won your first case we might speak of being married."

"When my first case—good night!" uttered the affronted young man. "What did your Aunt Anna say?"

"She asked how old you were." "What does it matter?"

Eva shrugged. "I told her twenty-two."

"And then she said—?"

"A mere boy?"

"Isn't it dreadful?"

Ronald looked reflectively across the waving green toward his biplane. "I've a good idea—I'll run away—or fly away with you, Eva."

"Dare you?" she challenged.

"Not unless you really want to come, Eva. It's pretty serious, you know."

"I know—and I won't be really happy until we are married and settled in our own home."

His hand caught hers and held it tightly. They were very young and they were madly in love; perhaps that might condone their elopement. As Eva flew into the house by a side entrance and emerged five minutes later with a tiny mysterious bundle hidden under her leather coat, she was conscious, shaken, for the good judge and his wife had been as parents to her for many years. She owed her education and her social position to their tender care. But she was dazzled by love's first glamour and the romance of flying away with her lover appealed to her romantic spirit.

"I am ready," she said a little breathlessly, as she joined him at the side of the aeroplane.

He was suddenly serious and rather astounded of his impetuous wooing. "Did you leave a message for them?" he wanted to know.

She nodded. "The customary note planned on my pin cushion."

Their getting away was very prosaic. Ronald was waiting to see whether there was really going to be a wind squall for the black clouds were piling up in the northwest.

"We will go south," urged Eva, "and we can land on the flying field, if necessary, and as it was growing late, he followed her suggestion."

They got away fairly well, but the wind suddenly veered and the plane bucked viciously.

"Shall we land?" demanded Ronald. "I am afraid for you."

"I am all right," she shouted. "I like this."

They ascended and seemed to strike a quiet lane of air and traveled swiftly.

"Where are we going?" screamed Eva.

"Denver?"

"How far?"

"Fifty miles—I know a preacher there; good friend of mine."

"I had always planned a gorgeous wedding—with eight bridesmaids and everything."

"What's that?" bellowed the prospective bridegroom.

AN INDIAN NEVER FORGETS

Scene: Interior of a cabin. A pioneer, John Stone, is working over his rifle. His wife is sitting in the room. Another pioneer, Nathan Greene, is looking out of a window.

JOHN STONE: I tell you, I saw the tips of war feathers behind that big rock as I was coming up the path.

NATHAN GREENE: Probably a wild turkey. The Indians in this part of the country are friendly, anyhow, so don't be alarmed.

MRS. STONE: It may be a wandering tribe. You can't tell. Are the windows barred?

STONE: Yes. It is unlikely that the people in the next cabin are gone now. There were four well-grown sons there.

MRS. STONE: We shouldn't have stayed so far out from the fort.

STONE: Listen! (Grabs up his rifle; goes to window.) A succession of war whoops is heard. Just as I feared. They're a strange tribe, and so many of them we haven't a chance. Better keep out of range of those loop-holes.

CHIEF: Maybe we can make terms with them—tell them that the soldiers at the fort would quickly punish them if they harm us.

STONE: A lot of attention they demand.

MRS. STONE: They're circling around the house!

ONE REEL YARNS

THE WALKING NEWSPAPER

Martha was known as "the walking newspaper." She was always gossiping about some one. She was the first one to find out when anyone did anything out of the way. At least half of the stories she repeated turned out to be untrue.

Her friends soon grew tired of this habit of Martha's. They were never sure that she was not talking about them to some one else. She belonged to a knitting club which met once a week, and she always came to these meetings loaded down with "latest news," as she called it. One time she missed a meeting because of a bad cold. In her absence the girls decided to try to cure her of her habit.

The next day Martha met her friend Eleanor on the way to school. "Oh, Martha," said Eleanor, "I'm so sorry you have been falling in school and may not get through this year. Some one was telling me about it."

"Why, the idea," said Martha. "I'm getting along fine."

At noon she was going home for lunch when Lucile came running up. "Really, Martha," she said in a low voice, "I think you ought to know that people are saying your older brother was expelled from college. I wonder how it happened to get around. There isn't anything in it, is there?"

"I should say not," said Martha. "What a story!"

That evening Ruth called up to ask if her mother had recovered. "Mother isn't sick," Martha answered.

"What?" said Ruth. "I heard this afternoon that she fell down stairs and sprained her wrist. I'm surprised that there isn't any truth in it."

Martha heard that week that some one said her father was falling in business, and that her brother had been arrested for something.

"Oh, Martha," said some one at knitting club next week, "I heard that Emma Harvey was caught cheating. Know anything about it?"

"No, I don't," said Martha. "And I wouldn't talk about it if I did."

"Poor little boy," said a kind lady to my pal Oscar. One day, "You're always almost starved, aren't you?"

"Oh, no," I heard Oscar say. "After my meals I'm only just hungry."

Soph. to Fresh: "What are mumps?"

"Oh, a swell disease."

Yon can't stop a thing by makin' a crime of it. One good thing—we hardly ever hear of an unhappy home any more, now that ever-buddy tears out after breakfast.

TRAVELING MEN IN WISCONSIN DEMAND LOWER HOTEL RATES

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Traveling men in Wisconsin have fired their first shot in a campaign to obtain a reduction in the prices charged for rooms and meals in hotels by sending a letter of protest to 1,500 Wisconsin hotel proprietors.

The protest was adopted as a resolution at the last session of the Wisconsin division of the Travelers' Protective association.

Greatness, Bigness

BY DR. WILLIAM E. BARTON

JOSEPH PARKER, a few weeks before his last illness, stood in his accustomed place in London and made the Bible in the City Temple pulpit into an atlas. He opened it at an imaginary map of London.

"London! London! London! It fills the whole page! It fills the whole life and thought and imagination of many of its people. They eat and drink and worship London. They know nothing, think nothing, but London!"

Then he turned a page, and found what he assumed to be a map of England.

"And here in this corner of the map is London, just a little speck!"

In succession he turned to a map of Europe and to one of the world.

"And upon a map of Europe, England is not very large, and Europe looks small upon a map of the world. Here he forsook his imaginary atlas, and said:

"And now if you will take an orrery, if you know what that is—and if once I get the word said I never make a second attempt—if you take an orrery, the sun shows the entire solar system, with the sun at the center, and the planets in place, and this great earth's a child's marble—where now is London?"

Then he said—

"A thing is not necessarily great because it is big, nor big because it is near."

"I heard Joseph Parker in this address, and I thought it a very wholesome rebuke to the conceit and provincialism of London, and I have thought of it many times since as a lesson which Americans need not less than the people of England."

Perhaps there is no nation that has need of more frequent warning not to confuse bigness with greatness.

"A thing is not necessarily great because it is big, nor big because it is near."

SIXTEEN STUDENTS ARE SUSPENDED FOR HAZING AT U. OF M.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Sixteen sophomore men of the engineering college of the University of Minnesota were notified Wednesday of their suspension from the university. The action came after investigation of reported hazing of freshmen. It was found the men suspended captured several first year men on their way to classes, tied them to trees and painted their faces. Hazing is permitted only one day when the authorized class fight is held. The engineering sophomores were four days ahead of time.

Unusually Heavy Enrollment

Teaching Staff

MRS. A. C. BANGSBURG AND
ETHEL PRICE ALREADY HERE

Instructor in Physical Education
Department Not Yet Chosen

Due to unusually large enrollment at the local normal school this fall it has been found necessary to add three members to the faculty. Two of the new teachers have already arrived and have taken up their work. They are Mrs. A. C. Bangsburg, formerly Dr. Garrett, and Miss Ethel Price.

Mrs. Bangsburg, who was for some time in the employ of the state board of regents of the normal school as medical examiner, has been chosen as dean of women. In addition to this she will spend a half of each day teaching in the biology department.

This arrangement will allow Miss Warren, who has been the acting dean since the opening of school this fall, to devote her full time to her work in the domestic science and chemistry departments.

Miss Price, a graduate of the Episcopal, Mich., normal school and of the Teachers' College of Columbia university, will be an instructor in the English department. She has had several years of experience in teaching, both in high schools and in college. The new instructor for the department of physical education has not yet been chosen. The position is being filled temporarily by Miss Catherine Lase of La Crosse.

INDIAN RELICS FOUND ON DECORA PRAIRIE; IN BROWN COLLECTION

Time was when the fertile fields of Decora Prairie near Galesville, were the hunting and camp grounds of the Indians. That it was a favorite rendezvous of the red men is plain from the many stone weapons and tools that have been plowed up by farmers in that locality. No finer specimens are seen than those preserved by George Brown at the Brown farm. A beautifully fashioned flint spearhead, eight inches in length, being a specimen from every person who examines it. One wonders at the skill of the savages in working flint with no other forces than heat and tools of stone. Two skinning knives and a stone grinder are other interesting specimens in Mr. Brown's collection.

WHO'S LIKE HELEN CHADWICK? PRIZE WAITING FOR HER

Rivoli Offers Theater Party to Local Beauty Most Resembling "Dangerous Curve" Star

Some handsome young lady of La Crosse is going to have a theater party at the Rivoli next week. On her face. This was announced last Thursday, when the management took advantage of the arrival of "Dangerous Curve Ahead" with Helen Chadwick, to make the offer of ten seats at any performance to the local girl who most nearly resembles the star of the photoplay. Pictures of the actress are now on display in downtown windows, and girls who believe themselves to have a similar type of countenance are requested to submit photographs to the Rivoli Theatre. Pictures may be submitted in person or by mail, and should carry the name and address of the subject on the back. They will be carefully preserved and mailed back to the contestants at the close of the contest.

Now, who looks like Helen Chadwick?

could recruit nearly half a million men. Roads entering New York were advertising for men to fill positions which may be vacated and roads entering Chicago are expected to take the same course within the next few days.

Between August, 1920, and June, 1921, the number of railroad employees decreased by 611,681, according to figures of the interstate commerce commission and more than 60,000 of these were train service men.

Warn Against Strike
MILWAUKEE, Wis.—The American Railroadmen's association, a fraternal and benevolent association, embracing 10,000 yardmasters, yard conductors and switchmen, today issued an appeal to all railroad unions to call off the proposed general strike and accept the wage cut ordered by the United States railroad labor board.

The union men were warned that if they strike, "unhappily against you there will be 100,000,000 men, women and children. The same railroad managements that now seem to deny public opinion would so much and crystallize it against you as to overwhelm you and would use in their defense, that same power which should be used against them."

The statement, an open letter to union men, was signed by Frank Mackin, Jr., business manager of the order. "No man is too rich, nor none too powerful to escape the consequences attendant upon such a calamity," the letter said in reference to the strike.

"We know that the popular demand now appears to be for a strike against further wage reductions. We also realize, full well, how indispensable and uncomfortable is the task of advising against so popular a measure."

"Nevertheless, we deem it our duty to advise and in so doing we are not actuated solely for the good and benefit of the railroad employees. We call attention to these salient features: In all other lines of activity the artisans therein have been obliged to submit to a material reduction of wages as compared with the scale existing during a period of high prosperity; government statistics indicate that over 4,000,000 idle men are now clamoring for positions; a cessation of railroad work would make more terrible existing conditions of unemployment and in its trend would follow extreme poverty, want and suffering. We admonish you to a spirit of meditation and conciliation.

"To accept willingly a wage reduction under existing conditions of living and the cost thereof requires a high degree of fortitude. For the benefit of humanity, however, such sacrifices can be endured cheerfully."

Lay Plans to Fight Strike
NEW YORK.—Proceeding as if they expected failure of the labor board in its efforts to prevent the threatened railroad strike by a conference in Chicago today with the five brotherhood chiefs, members of the eastern presidents' conference met here today to lay plans for meeting the strike on eastern and New England roads.

Although they professed to see some hope of peace through the labor board's efforts the railroad heads declared that strike orders already issued they could not afford to delay their plans to see what the Chicago conference would bring forth.

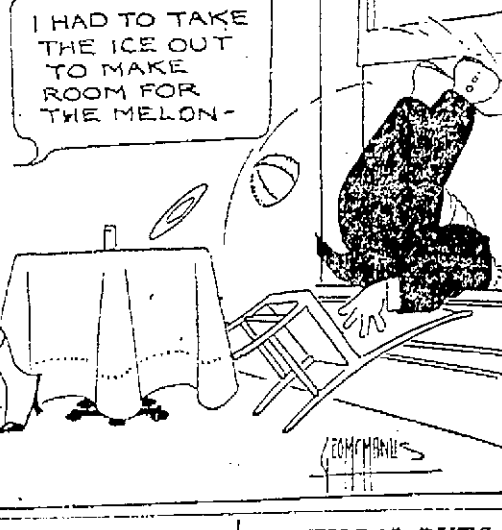

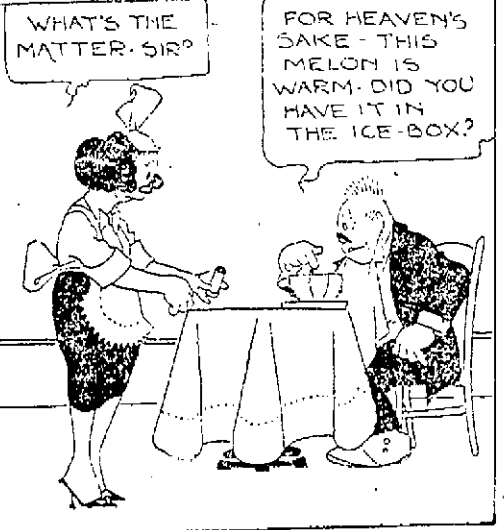

Dispatchers To Stick
Several of the railroads have sent out circulars to their employees urging the men to think carefully before they join the proposed strike. One of these letters, after telling of advantages of employment on that line, inquired: "Are you going to give up all this, your record and your seniority at the behest of men who are going to be unable to find you another job to take the place of the one you now have? Remember, they can order you out—but can they order you back?"

O. H. Briscoe, vice president of the American Train Dispatchers' association, announced that the dispatchers would take no part in the proposed strike.

Decisions Expected Soon
WASHINGTON, D. C.—Decision by the interstate commerce commission pending cases involving requested reductions in the freight rates on grain, hay and feed, and on lumber, were understood to be imminent on Thursday after a conference on the railroad situation in which President Harding, Chairman McPherson of the commission, and Acting Attorney General Gaff participated.

Whether the decision would involve a reduction of rates on the commodities involved, thereby translating the railroad employees' wage reduction of last July into the rate fabric, was not indicated. Such a course was suggested several days ago by the public. From the railroad labor board.

MRS. BAYER HEADS WOMEN TO WELCOME FORD VISITORS

wear a dark suit, brown overcoat and soft fur hat. The "mysterious woman" is of the handsome brunette type, with sparkling eyes and a broad smile. She will be dressed in a most becoming blue costume, trimmed with gray, and will wear a modish dark hat. These two mysterious folks will not be together, but will each be found around the various stores or on the street all day Friday. They will go from store to store, each of them bearing orders for six prizes. Approach them and say, "Are you the 'mysterious Ford man'?" If you have guessed rightly they will ask you a certain question in reply to which you must answer, "Because nobody knows what makes you ramble around." This is the exact formula to be used. Any deviation from it will cause the mysterious one to merely walk away. It's going to be great sport for the amateur detectives.

Ready for Ford day? All right, let's go!

My Dear Sir: Who is sounding the knell of the battleship? Let us presume that by the term "battleship," we mean, either a capital ship, or a dreadnaught, or a super-dreadnaught. We haven't time to deal with a technical array of arguments concerning displacements, speeds, bunker capacities, ranges, secondary and main batteries, compartments, protective decks, etc., or any of the figures that go with them. There is a human point of view from which there are many things that we understand that pertain to this much and well-sounded knell of the battleship.

For once more the knell of the battleship has sounded. This knell of the battleship has sounded many times. The battleship has had a knell ever since there was a standard fighting unit in maritime warfare.

It seems to me that the first recorded knell of the battleship was sounded when an ancient scientist destroyed a fleet of triremes in the Mediterranean with a burning class. Julius Caesar evolved a machine that crushed in the decks of the Belgian fleet, and I presume the Belgian thought the day of the battleship was over. Even in ancient history the cheap gun was taking all the joy out of life for the inhabitant of the coast of the sea. In the Tenth century the Yankee privateer used their long guns to the main deck of the British line who were outraged and ousted.

The nearest the knell ever came to having a serious knock was when the United States fought its Civil war. The Rebels invented the ram which put the ship of the line out of business in a hurry, and Princeton invented the Monitor which put the ram out of business, while on the side, there were invented mines and torpedoes and torpedo boats.

Parragut made himself famous talking about the kind of mines they had in those days. He lost some of his monitors on them. As a matter of fact he could afford to be brave about those mines or "torpedoes" as he called them for his ship followed the leaders, the monitors, and it was the monitors which sank, some of them without any survivors.

Could he not have judiciously kept someone ahead of him to run over the mines if there were any to run over? The torpedoes they had in those days were more bombs carried on a long spit at the bow of a small boat and almost invariably the section in the side of the vessel respected, swalloved torpedo boats, crews and all. Our old Gearsage was respected as well as the Confederate Albemarle. Altogether, if there was ever a time when "Battleship Knell" ought to have been selling above par it was in the Civil war when every country on earth had to scrap the wooden hulls. But the battleship survived.

The United States never forgot the ram, until it wound up with the old "Kathadin." She was a world leader on paper. Somehow she didn't prove popular as a type. She never rammed anything but a dock and she never looked the same afterward. "Then you'll all heard about the 'Kathadin'." The newspapers advised all the navies of the earth into kingdom come—for she was a dynamite gun boat. And she wound up as a disaster. When she was a dynamite gun boat, she was a dynamite gun boat. When she was a dynamite gun boat, she was a dynamite gun boat. When she was a dynamite gun boat, she was a dynamite gun boat.

That torpedo got so it could scissor through a wire fence around a battleship or jump over the fence, but the battleship kept right on getting more profitable and more costly. Seems the more that was invented to destroy her, the more costly she became. Then Lake and Holland got to inventing submarines. The sea.

CHICAGO TO BATTLE PRINCETON ELEVEN IN EAST SATURDAY

Coach Stagg and Warriors Bent on Making Great Showing in Intersectional Clash

CHICAGO, Ill.—The University of Chicago football team departs Thursday for the east to meet Princeton on the "Big Game" Saturday in one of the most important intersectional clashes in the history of the sport. The contest will be the principal event of the season for the Chicago team, which has been undefeated in its record to date. The Princeton team, which has been defeated in its only game to date, will be looking for a victory in this contest.

Coach Stagg and his warriors are bent on making a great showing. The coach believes that his team has a chance to win if they get the breaks of the game, but he realizes that they will be called upon to make an eleven-point record in all departments of play and one which will fight until the final whistle is blown.

No Prediction by Stagg
The Midway member believes that a victory for the Chicago team is more than a matter of probability, and for this reason will not make any prediction as to the result. But back of all this Stagg knows he has a strong feeling that his team will improve as the season wears on. The men may lack the experience of hard games, but if they start early in the fall and gain confidence they will be hard for the Tigers to shake off.

KEELER SQUAD LEAVES FOR BATTLE WITH WHITEWATER NORMAL FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Keeler's crew of normal school football warriors left Thursday morning for Whitewater, where they will meet Coach Agnew's battlers on Friday afternoon.

Keeler's crew of normal school football warriors left Thursday morning for Whitewater, where they will meet Coach Agnew's battlers on Friday afternoon. The locals have been showing up well in practice for the past few days, and put up an unusually strong game against the second eleven Wednesday afternoon.

Some changes have been made in the lineup since the previous game two weeks ago. Blitzer, who is again out, has been working in the quarter back position, with McGorlick, former quarter, at end. Seayberch is at the other end of the line. The line remains the same as before, with Lewis and Gerber tackles, Capt. Kevin and Jones, guards, and three size, and another group who stand out for the six and a half foot lengths. For my part, I am satisfied with a whipper split because it has five feet long and weighing around four ounces. When you get the rod in your hand and whip it back and forth you will have no trouble deciding which size was made for you. Let your common sense and sense of feeling govern the size.

My First Rod
When my Dad bought me my first bait-casting rod when I was about seventeen he selected a steel one probably because he knew I was naturally rough with everything I had my hands on. It was a wise selection, for I had never handled a bait-casting rod, and still felt the necessity of handling the game fish just as I always had before with my sturdy cane pole and heavy line.

Cathedral of Mud and Wood
Of the world's cathedrals, probably the most curious is that which grows a hill in Uganda. It appears to resemble nothing so much as a mountain of grass, although closer inspection one is able to see that mud and wood have been extensively employed. The structure can accommodate 4,000 persons.

PUNTING DUEL WHEN STALEYS MEET DAYTON
CHICAGO, Ill.—When Staleys and Dayton clash in an important football game in the American Professional association at Club Park Sunday an interesting punting duel should result between "Hack" Abbott, former of Syracuse, and either Harley or Huffine of the Staleys. Harley did some of the booting against Rochester last Sunday, but his work was not up to standard, and Huffine booted the oval for the better distance. The trio are capable of averaging forty five yards.

FARMERS TO PETITION CONGRESS TO REPEAL TRANSPORTATION ACT

Esch-Cummins Law and Adamson Act Prevent Return to Normal Says Howard

RAIL ACT USURPS STATE RIGHTS DECLARES FARM BUREAU CHIEF

Blames Adamson Law for Unreasonable Railway Rates

CHICAGO, Ill.—The American Farm Bureau federation, with a membership of 1,200,000 farmers, announced Wednesday it had decided to ask congress immediately for repeal of the Esch-Cummins law and the Adamson act.

These were war-time measures and they are preventing a speedy return to normal conditions, said J. R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau federation.

"The Cummins-Esch law of the transportation act of 1920 was the vehicle through which the railroads were returned to their owners," Mr. Howard said. "It was considered the best possible law which could be passed for the return of the roads under conditions then prevailing."

"One provision of this act was the interstate commerce commission to fix railroad rates to produce a minimum net return of 5 1/2 per cent above all expenses and taxes on the present value of American railroads. The farm bureau believes this to be a general class legislation, un-American and unsound."

"The provisions of the act in setting up a railway labor board did not properly take into account the necessity for coordination as between the interstate commerce commission, which determines the income of the railroads and the railway labor board which has control of the largest items of expenditure. This seemingly has prevented the proper functioning of both the interstate commerce commission and the labor board."

Mr. Howard added that the act and its interpretations had been found to take from the states the power to regulate rates and penalties of the carriers relating to interstate transportation and distribution of cars.

"The American Farm Bureau federation believes that the Cummins-Esch act should either be repealed in its entirety or at once amended to correct these serious defects," he declared.

Relative to the Adamson act he said: "We have long been on record favoring its repeal. Our executive committee with representatives from all sections of the country declares that it is responsible for the unreasonable transportation rates and it continued will affect all industries, including agriculture, toward increasing the cost of production beyond an economic basis."

"The Rescue Mission has a big job ahead of it this winter. Have you helped?"

"How will women look in 1930?" asks a magazine. Oh, about three or four years older!

NEURO CONFESSES TO GIRL'S MURDER

Slayer Arrested for Crime of Last Spring After Shooting Policeman

VINELAND, N. J.—Louis Lively, negro, accused of killing a little girl at East Moorestown, N. J., last spring, was arrested here Wednesday after shooting at a policeman. According to the police he confessed to killing the child.

Lively is charged with killing seven-year-old Matilda Russo, mutilating her body and burying it in the cellar of his home in East Moorestown. The child's body was found a week after she had disappeared. Lively vanished the day before the discovery of the murder.

In his confession police said Lively told them he had roomed through New England and Canada. He returned to Bridgeton, N. J., and Tuesday night walked to Vineyard, reaching there this morning. Policeman A. Wilson thought he recognized the negro as Lively, and as he and another officer stepped up to Lively the latter shot

Wilson, who is believed to be fatally wounded. A crowd gathered at the jail, and threats of lynching were heard. The chief of police summoned assistance and every precaution was taken to safeguard the prisoner.
